The three worksheets were posted below the student's practical ability to determine the degree of comparison of a Filipino adjective (kaantasan ng pang-uri). The three benchmarks of Filipino adjectives are lantay (positive grade), pahambing (comparative grade), and pasukdol (superlative grade). LANTAY (Positive grade) Filipino adjectives that are lantay indicate a characteristic or property of a noun or pronoun. Examples of these adjectives are maganda, maliit, puro, mahaba, dilaw, luma, etc. For some adjectives, if the noun is plural, repeat the first syllable of the root word (magaganda, maliit, mahahaba, etc.). PAHAMBING (Comparative degree) The adjectives of the Philippines that are pahambing indicate that the noun or pronoun possesses the characteristic or property to a greater extent than another noun or pronoun. Two objects or faces are compared here. The degree of comparison pahambing is classified into two types: paghahabing na patulad and paghahabing na di-patulad. Paghahabing na patulad In paghahabing na patulad, the two objects (or persons) being compared own the property to the same degree. One is neither better nor worse than the other. In paghahabing na patulad, the following prefixes (unlapi) are used: maga-magsing- / magsin- (for root words beginning with d, l, r, s, or t) / magsim- (for root words beginning with b or p) / magkasing- / magkasin- (for root words beginning with d, l, r, s, or t) / magkasim- (for root words beginning with b or p) / kasing- / kasin- (for root words beginning with l, r, s, or t) / kasim- (for root words beginning with b or p) / sin- (for root words beginning with d, l, r, s, or t) / sim- (for root words beginning with b or p) ga- : This unlapi is used to indicate that an object is the same size as the word attached to the prefix ga-. Examples are gatuli (as small as a grain or a kernel) and gabundok (as big as a mountain). Paghahabing na di-patulad In paghahabing na di-patulad, one of the objects or persons being compared owns more or less of the quality or property. One is better or worse than the other. Pahambing na palamang (paghahabing na di-patulad) When the noun or pronoun (usually the of the proposal) described by the pang-uri possesses more than one quality, the comparison is described to be palamang or pahambing na palamang. The words used with Filipino adjectives to indicate pahambing na palamang are as follows: higit na... kaysa lalo/lalong... kaysa kaysa di-hamak na... kaysa lubha/lubhang... kaysa Pahambing na pasahol (paghahabing na di-patulad) When the noun or pronoun (usually the subject of the sentence) described by the pang-uri possesses less of a quality, the comparison is described to be pasahol or pahambing na pasahol. The words used by the adjectives of the Philippines to indicate pahambing na palamang are as follows: di-gaano/di-gaanong... na gaya/na tulad di-lubha/di-lubhang... na gaya/na tulad di-gasino/di-gasinong... na gaya/na tulad di-masyado/di-masyadong... na gaya/na tulad PASUKDOL (superlative grade) Filipino adjectives that are pasukdol can be made from the following: 1. Adding prefixes (unlapi) pinaka- or napaka-: pinakamaganda, napakalaki 2. Repeating pang-uri: matalinong-matalino, payat na payat 3. Adding the words kay or ang before the repeated pang-uri: Kay ganda-ganda ng mga bulaklak! Ang baho-baho ng basura sa labas! 4. Adding the prefix pagka- to a repetitive pang-uri: pagkabangu-bango, pagkaliit-liit 5. Using the following words before pang-uri: ubod nang, saksakan nang, sukdulan nang, tury na, talanagg, hari ng, etc. You can print and distribute the pdf sheets below to your children or students, but you can't do it for profit.
